

Interim recruitment service turns change into opportunity for international employability services provider

17th August

Our interim recruitment service specialises in supporting employers during times of change by providing high-quality candidates that maximise productivity and fit seamlessly into their culture.

We recently supported an international employability services provider who had a number of requirements for interim staff, including an urgent need for a consultant to work on a short-term basis across a wide range of stakeholder engagement projects.

Over the years we have worked hard to develop an outstanding pool of senior interim managers who are pre-vetted and ready to take on short, medium and longer-term assignments. We drew upon this network and were able to quickly identify a consultant who had the right skills and ethos for the employer.

The interim consultant initially joined the employer on a ten-day contract, but their expertise quickly proved to be invaluable and their contract has been subject to numerous extensions, most recently to cover a three month contract on an exclusive retainer.

This arrangement enabled the interim consultant to support a number of additional projects for the employer, including supply chain and strategy development working across multiple government funded projects.

The employer is delighted with the service they have received, and the impact that the consultant has made and are currently discussing further extensions through to 2017.
