

Parkhouse Bell leads recruitment of new Association of Employment and Learning Providers Chief Executive, Mark Dawe

10th March 2016

Martin Dunford, Chairman of the Association of Employment and Learning Providers (AELP), today praised Parkhouse Bell for the “excellent service” it delivered while leading on the recruitment of the organisation’s new Chief Executive.

AELP is the leading trade association for vocational learning and employment providers in Britain. The majority of its 770+ members are independent private, not-for-profit and voluntary sector training and employment services organisations.

AELP members are responsible for training 75% of England’s 850,000 apprenticeships currently on programme.

Newly appointed AELP Chief Executive Mark Dawe said, “I am very excited about taking on this role at a time when the delivery of traineeships, apprenticeships and workplace learning is at the heart of the government’s strategy. It is a privilege to be working for almost 800 members helping them and the government achieve success in the productivity agenda through a fundamental shift in skills policy, ultimately for the benefit of the workforce and organisations of all types and sizes in the UK.”

Parkhouse Bell was delighted to work in partnership with members of the AELP Board to lead the recruitment of Mark. Martin Dunford commented, “We were pleased by the response we had from a number of very high calibre candidates and the selection of Mark has been the result of a very competitive process.”

Martin Dunford continued to praise Parkhouse Bell for the excellent service it provided during the process.
